DESCRIPTION: CANCER STUDY                      REPORTER: MARIA CELESTE

In Health Today: A direct link between being overweight and cancer risk has been confirmed according to a report by the World Cancer Research Fund. The authors of the report did not do a direct investigation; instead they studied over 500,000 studies published throughout the world, from which they selected the most relevant. They concluded that being overweight increases the likelihood of developing various types of cancer, including colon, prostate, and breast cancer. To avoid this, they recommend maintaining a healthy weight, or losing weight if necessary. They also recommend limiting the consumption of sugar, fats, and alcohol, as well as the processed meats such as ham and bacon. Another important recommendation is to exercise regularly.

DESCRIPTION: WORLD BLOOD CRISIS

REPORTER: MARIA CELESTE

The solution to the shortage of blood available for transfusions is right around the corner. Researchers in Denmark have found the way to change different blood types into Type "O", the universal blood type. In other words, a type that can be used on all human beings. The most interesting part is that they have done so by using a bacteria that eats the sugar molecules that typically make one blood type incompatible with the others. Tests with human subjects are already being carried out.

DESCRIPTION: LOSE WEIGHT                      REPORTER: MARIA CELESTE

We have today very important news for all those who are trying to lose weight. Scientists now tell us that one of the main reasons we have such an obesity epidemic is that the majority of people remain seated during a great part of their day. Scientists at the University of Missouri have found that when one is seated for various hours, fat burning enzymes cease working and the fat, instead of serving as fuel for muscles, is quickly trapped by the adipose layer. The conclusion is that it is not enough to do exercise: one has to stand and walk various times a day because the leg and back muscles are the greatest fat burners.

DESCRIPTION: LIQUID LASHES

REPORTER: MARIA CELESTE

A warning about products that promise to lengthen and thicken eyelashes! Authorities recently issued a consumer alert about one of them "Age Intervention Eyelash by Jan Marini" stating that it could damage the eyes because it contains a substance that is an active ingredient in a medicine used to treat glaucoma although the manufacturer says it has substituted that ingredient for another. Actually, there is another mascara, "Revitalash" that contains a similar ingredient, that could cause redness or inflammation if it comes in contact with the eyes.
